Cal. No. 771-65-SA—Space Conditioning, Inc., Harrisonburg, Va., filed for approval of their type AO Industrial Oil Burners, Models AO-2-4.2, AO-2-6.3, AO-2-9.8, AO-4-4.2, AO-4-6.3 and AO-4-9.8 under the oil Burner Rules of the Board. These burners will be marketed under the trade names Iron Fireman, Petro and Whirlpower.

PROPOSED USE: Conversion type oil burners.

DESCRIPTION: The type AO burners are forced draft, modulating oil burners completely factory assembled. They have mounting flanges for attachment by bolting to a boiler front. The burner assembly includes refractory tile which projects into the fire box 5 inches to protect the burner head from reflected heat.

The burners are designed for #2 or #4 fuel oil and combustion and oil atomizing air is supplied from an air compressor—Gast or Quincy. When #4 oil is used an approved electric preheater is to be installed in the oil piping near the burner. Ignition is by gas and electric spark.

The controls consist of Fireye electronic controls both to supervise pilot and mainburner flames and shutoff oil flow in 2 to 4 seconds in case of flame failure and, by means of a timer, to establish low fire burner start and high fire run. In addition, an air flow switch is installed to prevent start up until combustion air flow is proven. Operating controls and a high limit control are also included.

The approximate ratings of the various models is as follows:

On No. 2 fuel oil

Model	G.P.H.	Btu per. hr.
AO-2-4.2	30	4,200,000
AO-2-6.3	45	6,300,000
AO-2-9.8	70	9,800,000

Cal. No. 816-65-SA—The Autocall Company, Shelby, Ohio, filed for approval of the appliance known as Autocall Water flow Indicator, Models 4154 and WF-4 under the provisions of C26-1340.0 Administrative Building Code.

PROPOSED USE: To indicate flow of water through a wet pipe sprinkler system.

DESCRIPTION: The type 4154 water flow indicator is made for standard pipe sizes of 1½, 2 and 2½ inches. It is inserted into and fastened to a riser of a sprinkler system.

The indicator is a paddle operated device that consists of a cast metal pipe saddle and a mechanism to which is fastened a thin flexible monel metal paddle. The paddle conforms to the inside shape and size of the pipe. When a sprinkler head or heads open, the water flowing through the pipe causes the paddle to swing upward closing the contacts on a microswitch which is wired to set off an alarm.

Since the water in a sprinkler system is not always static and momentary pressure surges may occur, a time delay mechanism, adjustable for periods up to 90 seconds, is incorporated between the paddle operated stem and the alarm contacts to absorb intermittent paddle activity. However, paddle deflection from a constant flow will initiate the alarm.

The type WF-4 water flow indicator is similar in design and operation to the type 4154, but is made to fit 3 to 8 inch pipe sizes.

INSPECTION AND TEST: All data submitted was examined by Assistant Engineer George F. Sklenarik.

These devices were tested and approved by Underwriters' Laboratories, File S 819.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance known as Autocall Waterflow Indicator, Models 4154 and WF-4 for use in New York City, under the provisions of C26-1340.0 Administrative Building Code, provided that each indicator shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading: 'Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. PROPOSED USE: As an Overhead unvented Gas-fired Infrared Radiant Heater for use in airplane hangers, industrial and commercial buildings.

DESCRIPTION: The Solaray Model IF-50 unvented gas-fired radiant heater is a space heater so designed to be hung overhead. The unit is mounted with the main burner assembly in a fixed horizontal position. The shade can be tilted from 0° to 20° in either side direction. When installed the heater must be set a minimum of 72 inches above any combustible material due to the downward reflection of the heat. The heater assembly incorporates a burner, stainless steel emitter, polished aluminum reflector, self-generating or line voltage or 24-volt automatic gas valve, automatic pilot with 100% shut-off, gas pressure regulator, and primary air shutter. Optional: electric ignition and thermostat.

The input rating is 50,000 BTU/HR. A.G.A. minimum clearances from the reflector to combustible materials are as follows:

TOP	36 in.
SIDES	36 in.
REAR	36 in.
BELOW	72 in.

Where the heater is installed with the reflector in a horizontal position, the mounting height will normally be 14 ft to 18 ft. from the burner to the floor. Where the reflector is tilted at 20°, the maximum distance is usually reduced to 15 ft.

The heaters should be spaced at least 15 ft. apart and allow a maximum distance between heaters of 35 ft., and 100 ft. between rows of heaters.

Wherever possible, mount units along cold walls at a distance of about 10 ft. from the center line of heaters, and 8 ft. with a 20° tilt angle.

In the event of fuel interruption, or power failure, or for any reason should the automatic pilot be extinguished, the A.G.A. approved controls provide positive safety.

AGA approved for use with natural or mixed gases.

INSPECTION AND TEST: Details of construction were examined by Assistant Architect T. W. Farricker. The heaters have been tested and approved by the American Gas Association.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance known as "Solaray" Model IF-50 gas-fired infrared heater for use in New York City under the provisions of Article 12, Chap. 26, Administrative Building Code and that the Roberts-Gordon Solaray Infrared Radiant Gas-fired heaters may be installed with the approved minimum reduced clearances in inches from combustible construction in accordance with the test of the American Gas Association as stated on the tags affixed to the units.

In all cases however, adequate ventilation shall be provided for and clearances shall be sufficient to allow for proper servicing of the heaters. These heaters shall not be installed in garages, airplane hangers or places of explosive atmosphere. Each heater shall bear a label, permanently affixed reading, "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Calendar Number 869-65-SA."

At least one sample of sufficient size to furnish pieces for each of the required tests shall be selected from each 3,000 board feet of the treated plywood panels providing that the entire quantity represents one charge in the treating cylinder or that the panels are from one continuous manufacturers run.

3.3

Samples shall be oven dried at a temperature of one hundred and forty degrees Fahrenheit so that the wood contains a maximum of 8% of moisture, and shall then be tested.

3.4

Tests of treated plywood panels shall be made by a qualified testing agency approved by the Board of samples selected by such agency in accordance with these rules.

Excerpts From The Administration Building Code

C26-335.0 Apparatus for Testing "Fireproofed" Wood

a. Tests for "fireproofed" wood shall be conducted in a fume hood so regulated as to avoid any disturbance of the test flame.

b. The accuracy of the pyrometers used to determine temperatures in these tests shall be checked periodically.

C26-336.0 Crib Test for "Fireproofed" Wood

A crib test for "fireproofed" wood shall be made in the following manner: Twelve test pieces each one-half of an inch square or less in cross-section and six inches long shall be built up in three layers of four samples each, spaced equidistant from each other to form a crib six inches square. The bottom of the crib shall be set six inches above a bunsen burner and subjected to a temperature of twelve hundred degrees Fahrenheit for one minute. The material shall be unacceptable if after removal of the burner the flame persists in any piece longer than twenty seconds and the glow longer than thirty seconds.

C26-337.0 Timber Test for "Fireproofed" Wood

a. A timber test for "fireproofed" wood shall be made in the following manner: Two test pieces each three-quarters by one and one-half inches in cross section and twelve inches long shall be laid flat, in contact, across the top of a gas crucible furnace and subjected for two minutes to a flame of seventeen hundred degrees Fahrenheit. At the expiration of that time the test pieces shall be removed from the furnace and the duration of the flame and glow recorded. The test pieces shall then be cross-cut at the point in the burned section where the unburned cross-sectional area is the least and that area shall be measured and recorded. Any piece shall be unacceptable in which the flame persists for longer than fifteen seconds and the glow for longer than twenty seconds. The unburned area of hard woods shall be at least fifty-five percent and of soft woods at least forty-five percent of the original cross-sectional area.

b. Where timber test samples of standard cross-sectional dimensions are unobtainable from the manufactured produce, smaller sections shall be used in making timber tests, but if the cross-sectional area is less than the standard, the unburned area may be ignored.

c. In making this test, woods from deciduous trees, except poplar (white wood), basswood, red gum and tupelo, shall be considered hardwoods while all other woods including those specifically mentioned above shall be considered softwoods.

C26-338.0 Shavings Test for "Fireproofed" Wood

a. A shaving test for "fireproofed" wood shall be made in the following manner: A mass of shavings shall be cut fairly thick by hand plane from the test sample and placed to a depth of two inches in a metal vessel twelve inches in diameter, the bottom of which consists of a wire screen of one-half inch mesh.

b. The shavings shall be packed down moderately to reduce the air spaces. A bunsen yellow flame shall then be placed beneath the vessel so that the flame is in contact with the shavings. After twenty-five seconds the flame shall be removed. The flame shall show a maximum height of six inches above the top of the bed of shavings and the shavings shall be consumed in five or more minutes.

C26-339.0 Determination of Results of "Fireproofed" Wood Tests

The wood represented by any one test sample shall be considered to have passed the requirements of this title if any two of the three tests, prescribed in Sections C26-336.0 through C26-338.0 are satisfactory.

Matter of Chatsworth 72nd St. Corp. vs. Foley:—On March 24, 1966, Notice of Petition and Verified Petition was served on the Board by George P. Monaghan, attorney for petitioner, seeking an Order granting the relief demanded in the petition, namely that the Board accept a "BZX" application extending the period to complete construction; Calendar Number 77-63-BZX—Vol. II; Premises 344 West 72nd Street, Block No. 1183, Lot No. 53, Borough of Manhattan.

At Supreme Court, Special Term, Part I, Mr. Justice Tierney ruled as follows:

"... In the opinion of the court, the petition does state facts sufficient to justify relief. In all of the circumstances, the reasonableness of the new zoning regulation is in issue. Accordingly, the cross-motion to dismiss is denied. Pursuant to CPLR, section 7804 (f), respondent is directed to serve an answer to the petition within twenty days after service of a copy of this order, with notice of entry thereof. The matter is restored to the August 16, 1966, calendar of Special Term, Part I, for all purposes."

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 183-34-SA Amendment to resolution as to additional water closet.

Kohler Co., Inc., Kohler, Wisconsin, requested that the resolution adopted January 29, 1939 and amended February 14, 1962 under Cal. 183-34-SA be reopened and amended so as to include an additional water closet.

ACTION OF BOARD—Application reopened and resolution amended, in accordance with the report and recommendation of the Committee on Test.

THE VOTE—

Negative: Vice Chairman Kleinert 1
Not Voting: Commissioner Fox 1

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:
156-63-SM—Amendment to resolution as to additional type shear connector.

Granco Steel Products Co., St. Louis, Mo. requested that the resolution adopted July 9, 1963 under Cal. No. 156-63-SM be reopened and amended so as to include an additional design of shear connector.

PROPOSED USE: A shear connector for composite steel and concrete floor and/or roof construction.

DESCRIPTION: The connector is made of 8 gage steel, complying with ASTM A-245 Grade "D". The connector is 3 inches in height and 1 inch wide in the shape of an arch. The connector is to be used only with Cofar construction, with or without cellular units as approved by the Board under Cal. No. 156-63-SM.

The revised connector is installed and used in the same manner as the presently approved connector.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The applicant has submitted reports of the tests conducted by R. W. Hunt. The tests were conducted on both normal and lightweight. The lightweight aggregate used in the tests was Haydite which has been shown by NBS Monograph 74 to have the same identical creep and shrinkage properties as the material Solite, approved by the Board under Cal. No. 591-60-SM. Field tests were witnessed at the Granco Steel Products Co. plant at St. Louis, Mo. by Director William A. Nolan and found to be satisfactory.

The number of connectors as determined by the formula V_h/q where "q" is the value of the shear load, on connector as set forth under C 26-5 17.0.b.4 Administrative Building Code is taken as 12.5K when the corrugations are parallel to beam, 11.0 K when the corrugations are transverse to beam.

These figures are arrived at Sect. 1.11.4 of the Commentary on the Spec. for the Design, Fabrication and Erection of Structural Steel for Buildings published by A. I. S. C. This section states the working values for various types of shear connectors are based upon a factor of safety of 2.5 against the ultimate strength.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends that the resolution adopted July 9, 1963 under Cal. No. 156-63-SM be reopened and amended so as to include the additional shear connector as herein described, on condition that the requirements of the resolution adopted July 9, 1963 under Cal. No. 156-63-SM are complied with. The Committee further recommends that the following conditions be also imposed: That when lightweight concrete is used that the lightweight aggregate shall only be the material Solite as approved by the Board under Cal. No. 591-60-SM; that item 8 of the original resolution be deleted when this new connector is used; that when lightweight concrete is used the allowable maximum moment shall not exceed 95% of the theoretical ultimate moment capacity; that the connectors are to be placed so that: for sheet corrugations parallel to the beam both legs of the connector shall be welded in the same corrugation and for sheet corrugation transverse to the beam the connectors shall bridge the corrugation and the legs welded in two corrugations; that where fire resistant floor and beam construction is re-

The studs are made of low carbon steel A-108, with a tensile of 60,000 p.s.i., a yield of 55,000 p.s.i. and an elongation of 20%.

There are four types of anchors: The headed concrete anchor stud with a smooth shank, headed stud with a threaded or deformed shank, bent stud anchor, and a flat bar anchor.

$$\text{Tensile loading — } A_{st} = \frac{P_t}{0.45 f's}$$

$$\text{Shear loading — } A_{st} = \frac{P_s}{0.45 f's}$$

$$\text{Combined tension and shear — } A_{st} = \frac{P_t + 1.06 P_s}{0.425 f's}$$

INSPECTION AND TEST: Details of construction were examined by Assistant Engineer J. A. Darts, and it was noted that the trapway was $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches and that the flushing was 4.8 gallons per flush. The water closet has been approved by the City of Detroit.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test is of the opinion that, although C26-1256.0 Administrative Building Code required that the trap of water closets be a minimum of $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches, that under C26-1240.0 new materials may be used if approved by the Board, and as the proposed new code states that closets shall pass a $1\frac{3}{4}$ inch ball, the Committee therefore recommends the approval of the Barlow Water Closet with rear outlet K-3718-P8, for use in New York City when installed in accordance with the requirements of Article 15, Chapter 26, Administrative Building Code and equipped with an approved vacuum breaker ball cock. The material shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. 715-65-SM".

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:
Cal. No. 912-65-SA—Automatic Fire Alarm Company, New York, New York, filed for approval of the appliance known as TR 612 Transmitter, under the provisions of the Interior Fire Alarm Rules of the Board.

PROPOSED USE: To transmit fire alarm signals from an interior alarm system to a central office.

DESCRIPTION: The TR 612 Transmitter is designed to be connected to a local interior fire alarm control panel without the use of an additional power source and without any modification to the alarm control panel.

An impulse relay is connected in series with the interior fire alarm circuit and is supervised by the fire alarm control panel. A ground or open in the wiring leading to the relay or in the relay will cause the interior fire alarm trouble bell to ring.

A mechanical clockwork device with code wheels and central office contacts operates on the gong circuit.

The actuation of an interior fire alarm box will cause the alarm gongs to ring. Three impulses of the gongs will cause the impulse relay in the transmitter to trip the clockwork mechanism and send the alarm to the central office.

As the transmitter runs down, a "rundown" cam closes a set of contacts causing the interior fire alarm trouble bell to ring until the transmitter is rewound. Then the trouble bell stops ringing and a one round signal is automatically sent to the central office indicating that the transmitter has been restored to service.

A test button is provided on the transmitter to permit the person in charge of the fire alarm system to make a daily test of the gongs and to hold fire drills without transmitting an alarm to the central office.

INSPECTION AND TEST: All data submitted was examined by Assistant Engineer G. F. Sklenarik.

The Fire Department has inspected this equipment and has submitted a report, dated June 8, 1966, recommending its approval based on its satisfactory performance under test.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance known as Automatic Fire Alarm Company's TR 612 Transmitter for use in New York City under the provisions of the Interior Fire Alarm Rules of the Board, and the requirements of the Fire Commissioner. Each transmitter shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. No. 912-65-SA".

No. 1-38-SR—Vol. II.

PROPOSED USE: Systems for welding steel structural members using CO₂ gas shielded wire, instead of the usual coated "stick" electrodes.

DESCRIPTION: System No. 1 uses solid steel wire fed and controlled by Hobart Micro-Wire and Fabco Machine, using CO₂ gas as a shroud to prevent oxidation (MIG 28 wire).

System No. 2 is the same as No. 1, except that it uses a hollow wire filled with a suitable flux, (Fabco 71 wire).

All connections are shown in Hobart Brochure EW 300, Section 3, Illustration No. 3-1.

INSPECTION AND TEST: Samples of down, overhead and vertical welds were made at the Hobart Plant at Troy, Ohio, on September 29, 1965, and January 12, 1966, using both wires and a complete third set of sample welds of same positions, sizes and shapes, and a thorough comparative set of tests to failure was to be made of each and every weld. The list of tests is in 3 sheets, initialed by E. W. K. (Kleinert) and is part of this record. A total of 180 tests were made—60 of each type of weld. All samples were sent to the Board's offices after tests for inspection. In all cases the welds made by the two new CO₂ gas shielded wire electrodes produced failing unit stresses as strong or stronger than those made by the older type of (Approved) "Stick" Electrodes.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the materials, equipment and process known as "Micro-Wire" and "Fabco" Machines and Wires, No. Fabco 71, with CO₂ Gas, "MIG" 25, with CO₂ Gas, MIG 28 with CO₂ Gas for use in New York City to weld structural steel

Rule 2. Definitions:

2.1 For the purpose of these rules, plywood panels shall be deemed to be fabricated of wood veneers, wood products and binders.

Rule 3. Usage, Testing and Identification:

No plywood panels shall be used where incombustible materials are required unless tested in accordance with Section C26-331.0 through C26-339.0 of the Administrative Code and certified as being in compliance with these rules.

Plywood panels, fireproofed at the factory, shall be tested before applying finished surfaces such as stains, varnishes, laminates, metal facing or other coatings when such other coatings are a component part of the panels as approved by the Board.

3.2

At least one sample of sufficient size to furnish pieces for each of the required tests shall be selected from each 3,000 board feet of the treated plywood panels providing that the entire quantity represents one charge in the treating cylinder or that the panels are from one continuous manufacturers run.

3.3

Samples shall be oven dried at a temperature of one hundred and forty degrees Fahrenheit so that the wood contains a maximum of 8% of moisture, and shall then be tested.

3.4

Tests of treated plywood panels shall be made by a qualified testing agency approved by the Board of samples selected by such agency in accordance with these rules.

3.4.1

Excerpts From The Administration Building Code

C26-335.0 Apparatus for Testing "Fireproofed" Wood

a. Tests for "fireproofed" wood shall be conducted in a fume hood so regulated as to avoid any disturbance of the test flame.

b. The accuracy of the pyrometers used to determine temperatures in these tests shall be checked periodically.

C26-336.0 Crib Test for "Fireproofed" Wood

A crib test for "fireproofed" wood shall be made in the following manner: Twelve test pieces each one-half of an inch square or less in cross-section and six inches long shall be built up in three layers of four samples each, spaced equidistant from each other to form a crib six inches square. The bottom of the crib shall be set six inches above a bunsen burner and subjected to a temperature of twelve hundred degrees Fahrenheit for one minute. The material shall be unacceptable if after removal of the burner the flame persists in any piece longer than twenty seconds and the glow longer than thirty seconds.

a. A timber test for "fireproofed" wood shall be made in the following manner: Two test pieces each three-quarters by one and one-half inches in cross section and twelve inches long shall be laid flat, in contact, across the top of a gas crucible furnace and subjected for two minutes to a flame of seventeen hundred degrees Fahrenheit. At the expiration of that time the test pieces shall be removed from the furnace and the duration of the flame and glow recorded. The test pieces shall then be cross-cut at the point in the burned section where the unburned cross-sectional area is the least and that area shall be measured and recorded. Any piece shall be unacceptable in which the flame persists for longer than fifteen seconds and the glow for longer than twenty seconds. The unburned area of hard woods shall be at least fifty-five percent and of soft woods at least forty-five percent of the original cross-sectional area.

b. Where timber test samples of standard cross-sectional dimensions are unobtainable from the manufactured produce, smaller sections shall be used in making timber tests, but if the cross-sectional area is less than the standard, the unburned area may be ignored.

c. In making this test, woods from deciduous trees, except poplar (white wood), basswood, red gum and tupelo, shall be considered hardwoods while all other woods including those specifically mentioned above shall be considered softwoods.

a. A shaving test for "fireproofed" wood shall be made in the following manner: A mass of shavings shall be cut fairly thick by hand plane from the test sample and placed to a depth of two inches in a metal vessel twelve inches in diameter, the bottom of which consists of a wire screen of one-half inch mesh.

b. The shavings shall be packed down moderately to reduce the air spaces. A bunsen yellow flame shall then be placed beneath the vessel so that the flame is in contact with the shavings. After twenty-five seconds the flame shall be removed. The flame shall show a maximum height of six inches above the top of the bed of shavings and the shavings shall be consumed in five or more minutes.

C26-339.0 Determination of Results of "Fireproofed"

Wood Tests

The wood represented by any one test sample shall be considered to have passed the requirements of this title if any two of the three tests, prescribed in Sections C26-336.0 through C26-338.0 are satisfactory.

WHEREAS, the proposed rules have been considered by the Board and proper notice has been given by publication in the Bulletin, in accordance with the rules of procedure.

Resolved, that the Board of Standards & Appeals does hereby adopt the rules as printed in the Bulletin.

COURT DECISIONS

Matter of 267 W. 71st St. vs. Foley:—At Supreme Court, Special Term, Part I, New York County, Mr. Justice Hofstadter rendered the following decision in the New York Law Journal of April 25, 1966, page 18:

"Petitioner seeks review and annulment of the determination of respondent refusing an additional extension of time for completion of her building. Respondents cross-move for dismissal upon the ground that maintenance of the proceeding is time-barred. A proceeding against a body or officer is not available if sought more than four months after the determination to be reviewed becomes final and binding (CPLR 217). This is the case here. To be sure, the members of the board were sympathetic with petitioner in her plight, but refused to act favorably because they believed they could not lawfully do so under section 11-324 of the Zoning Resolution. Section 11-324 itself may be subject to attack (see Cherry v. Brumbaugh, &c., 255 App. Div. 880). The cross-motion is therefore granted and the petition is dismissed, without prejudice, however, to such action or proceeding, administrative or judicial, as petitioner may be advised to secure relief." Calendar Number 104-BZX—II; Premises 267 West 71st Street, Borough of Manhattan."

At Supreme Court, Special Term, Part I, Mr. Justice Carney ruled as follows:

"... Petitioner filed a new application on June 28, 1966, with respondent board, for an extension of time to complete the work on the subject building. Such application was refused by letter of the respondent board dated July 6, 1966.

The respondent board contends that it did not reconsider the latest application.

However, the contentions raised by the parties should be tested after an answer is served which is required to be accompanied by a certified transcript of the record of proceedings under consideration.

Additionally, it has been held that even where there has been a formal reconsideration, a determination upon such recommendation, when made, amounted to a final determination which was reviewable by an article 78 proceeding instituted within four months thereafter (Matter of Camperlengo v. State Liquor Authority, 16 A. D. 2d 342, First Dept.).

Accordingly, the cross-motion to dismiss is denied without prejudice to asserting the grounds of dismissal herein, in the answer, which shall be served within five days of service of a copy of this order with notice of entry. The petitioner may renote the matter for hearing upon two days' notice."

(N. Y. Law Journal, August 4, 1966, page 7).

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads: 893-62-SA Case Plumbing Mfg. Corp., Div. of Ogden Corp., Robinson, Illinois, filed for approval of the appliance known as Silhouette Water Closet Models 4000 and 4100-A under the provisions of C26-1240.0 Administrative Building Code and the Submerged inlet Rules of the Board.

PROPOSED USE: One piece water closet.

DESCRIPTION: The water closet is made of vitreous china and the minimum dimension of the trapway is 2 7/16 inches. The water supply is through a ball cock which is installed in a compartment in one corner of the tank. The bottom of the compartment is drained to atmosphere by a 1/4 inch diameter hole. The top of the ball cock compartment is sealed closed by the ball cock. The top of the compartment is 1 3/4 inches below the top of the three 1 inch diameter overflow openings in the back of the tank.

INSPECTION AND TEST: Details of construction were examined by Assistant Engineer J. A. Darts and it was noted that the minimum dimension of the trapway was 2 7/16 inches. The water closet has been approved by the City of Detroit.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test is of the opinion that, although C26-1256.0 Administrative Building Code requires that the trap of water closets be a minimum of 2 1/2 inches, that under C26-1240.0 new materials may be used if approved by the Board and as the proposed new code states that water closets shall pass a 1 3/4 inch ball, the Committee therefore recommends the approval of the Silhouette Water Closet Models 4000 and 4100-A for use in New York City when installed in accordance with the requirements of Article 15, Chapter 26 Administrative Building Code and equipped with an approved vacuum breaker ball cock. The closet shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. No. 893-62-SA."

INSPECTION AND TEST: The original approval was based on a test conducted in accordance with ASTM E-119 at the Fire Research Station, Herts, England. The report of the laboratory showed that the temperature on the column at three hours was 1006°F and at 3 hours, 18 minutes failure occurred under load.

The Board adopted, under Cal. 521-60-GR, the permission to use Par. 17 of ASTM E-119, which states, "The test shall be regarded as successful if the column sustains the applied load during the fire endurance test for a period equal to that for which classification is desired".

RECOMMENDATION: On the basis of the tests, data submitted by the applicant and the action of the Board under Cal. 521-60-GR, the Committee on Test recommends that the resolution adopted May 28, 1963, under Cal. 924-62-SM, be reopened and amended so that the column protected with 2½ inches of Asbestospray, applied directly to and following the contour of the column be rated as a three-hour fire resistive column, on condition that all other requirements of the resolution adopted May 28, 1963, under Cal. 924-62-SM, be complied with.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:
1099-64-SA Heller Laboratories Inc., Leonia, New Jersey, filed for approval of the appliance known as Heller Automatic Proportioning Feeding Device Models 10, 15, 30 and 60, under the provisions of C26-178.0 Administrative Building Code and Section 170 of Sanitary Code.

PROPOSED USE: Device for feeding chemicals to potable water.

DESCRIPTION: This water treatment feeding device (Photo and diagram attached) consists of a tank, control orifice, valves and piping arrangement for feeding of water treatment to the main water supply line of a building so that the amount of treatment is automatically fed in proportion to the amount of water flowing in the main supply line.

The operation of this feeder is based on the Venturi tube which is used widely in water works engineering for measurement of water flow through pipe lines.

The feed tank is connected to the main cold water line (or the hot water line if only the hot water is to be treated) by means of flow control valves and a relatively small by-pass line connected in series across a flanged orificed plate of suitable size. The flanged orifice is inserted in the main line which creates a small pressure drop across the orifice, causing water to flow in the by-pass line so the flow of treatment solution is always in proportion to the flow of water in the main line.

While the flow in the by-pass feeder line is always proportional to the flow of water in the main line, the ratio of flow, in the by-pass feeder line, to the flow of water in the main line, can be controlled by adjusting the flow control valve in the by-pass line.

The treatment feed tank can be isolated from the main water supply line by means of the two shut off valves in the by-pass line, one located in the inlet side and the other located in the outlet side of the by-pass line.

APPLICATION OF TREATMENT

The water treatment used to control pipe corrosion are limited to those treatment materials permitted for water treatment under provisions of Section 170 of the Sanitary Code. Tests to determine and control the strength of treatment are made by standard colorimetric determination of sodium silicate, and electronic measurement of pH and total solids. These tests are made in the laboratory and also in the field by the Heller Laboratories' service man. These tests are sufficiently sensitive so that control of the treatment is easily regulated well within the limits prescribed by the Department of Health Regulations.

SETTING OF THE TREATMENT FEED RATE

The feed rate is adjusted with the aid of a colorimetric or electronic pH measuring instrument. Adjustment of the flow in the feed line is slowly increased until the desired treatment strength is obtained in the effluent water from a point in the main line beyond the feeder. When the desired treatment strength is obtained, the control valve handle is removed and the setting locked to prevent unauthorized tampering.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The appliance was tested at the Dept. of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity Testing Station, Kent Avenue, Brooklyn. The appliance successfully met the requirements of the New York City Health Code. The complete report is on file with and is part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance known as Heller Automatic Proportioning Feeding Device for voluntary use in New York City under the provisions of C-26-178.0 Administrative Building Code, Submerged Inlet Rules of the Board and the New York City Health Code, on condition that the chemical used with the device shall be sodium silicate. Each appliance shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading, "Approved by the Board of Standard and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. 1099-64-SA." As the service depends on a number of variables such as size of pipes, size of building to be serviced, the water pressure, rate and volume of flow, the Committee further recommends that the service to be of such a size as to adequately take care of these conditions under the provisions of the Sanitary Code and further the figures used in the design of the orifice and plans, shall be submitted in accordance with the requirements of C26.164.0 Administrative Building Code.

Steel Corp., owner, filed for approval of the material they describe at Atlas White Nonstaining Masonry Cement Type II as manufactured at the Universal Atlas Cement Divisions plant at Northampton, Pennsylvania. The application was filed under the provisions of C26-312.0 of the Administrative Building Code.

PROPOSED USE: Masonry Cement.

DESCRIPTION: The clinker for the Atlas White Non-Staining Masonry Cement is manufactured by the wet process from a two component mix, using high grade calcareous limestone and low iron siliceous clay. The high grade calcareous limestone having a Ca CO_3 content of 94.0 to 97.0 percent is purchased from the H. E. Millard Lime and Stone Company quarry Lebanon City, Pa. The quarry consists of 500 acres of land with limestone about 240 feet thick. The life of the quarry is about 20 years.

The stone is drilled, blasted and loaded by power shovel into trucks for transportation to the plant. The clay is secured from a company-owned plant near Kunkeltown, Pennsylvania.

The raw limestone is crushed in a hammermill and a ball mill. A slurry feed for the kiln is made from a blend of limestone and clay by intergrinding under control. The oil-fired kiln is heated to 2800°F, to produce a clinker from the slurry feed.

After cooling, the clinker is mixed with selected uniform white limestone, gypsum, air-entraining agent and water repellent material. The mixture is ground in three grinding units in series. After final grinding the finished cement is pumped to silos for storage.

METHODS OF CONTROL

The entire manufacturing procedure is under complete chemical and physical control. During grinding of the clinker limestone and gypsum mixture, specific surface, 325 mesh residue, air content and setting time are determined on each two hour sample obtained from a continuous sampler.

Compressive tests autoclave expansion, water retention, 325 mesh residue and chemical tests, including water soluble alkalies, are made on a composite sample of daily masonry cement production.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The Northampton, Pennsylvania plant of the applicant was previously inspected by a Committee on Test. Samples of the cement were analyzed by Haller Testing Laboratories, Plainfield, New Jersey and found to be in compliance with ASTM C91-64 requirements for Type II Non-Staining Masonry Cement.

RECOMMENDATION: On the basis of the data filed by the applicant, the Committee on Test recommends the approval of the material known as Atlas White Non-staining Masonry Cement Type II as manufactured at the Universal Atlas Cement Division plant at Northampton, Pennsylvania. This cement may be used in New York City under the provisions of C-26-312.0 of the Administrative Building Code.

Byron-Jackson Pumps, Inc., California, requested that the resolution adopted November 15, 1949 under Calendar Number 505-49-SA be reopened and amended so as to include additional models of pumps.

PROPOSED USE: Pumps for removing oil or gasoline from tanks or barges.

MINUTES

DESCRIPTION: The pumps are vertical type pumps and have three basic components, namely, pump bowl assembly, discharge column and discharge head.

The bowl assembly consists of meehanite cast iron bowls, with either closed or semi-enclosed bronze impellers. The bearings are high lead bronze and the pump shaft is of stainless steel. The impellers are secured on the pump shaft by means of stainless steel split tapered lock collets.

The discharge column is standard weight steel pipe. The line shafting is of stainless steel supported by bronze sleeve type bearings or other non-metallic materials.

The discharge heads are either meehanite cast iron or fabricated steel.

The pumps may be driven by explosion proof, vertical hollow shaft, vertical solid shaft or horizontal motors or steam turbine.

At no point in these pumps is there a rubbing contact between iron and steel or steel with steel and each pump is thoroughly grounded eliminating any possibility of a static charge being built up.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:

709-51-SM—Amendment to resolution as to additional fire resistive partitions and to re-assemble the presently approved partitions into one report.

Georgia-Pacific Corp., Bestwall Gypsum Division, Paoli, Penna., requested that the resolution adopted March 24, 1953 and amended at various times through December 17, 1963, under Cal. 709-51-SM, be reopened and amended so as to include additional fire resistive partitions and to re-assemble the presently approved partitions into one report.

PROPOSED USE: One, two and three-hour fire resistive partitions.

DESCRIPTION: The wallboard used as a component part of the various partitions is similar to the usual gypsum wallboard, except that to the gypsum core is added incombustible fibers and unexpanded vermiculite. The board is $\frac{5}{8}$ inches in thickness.

INSPECTION AND TESTS: All approvals granted under this Calendar Number are based on actual fire tests and successfully meeting the test requirements.

In order to clarify the approvals, the partitions will be subdivided into combustibile and incombustibile partitions and further into separate hourly ratings.

Combustible Partitions

I Wood Stud

A) One-Hour

1. $5\frac{1}{4}$ " thick load bearing partition—1 layer of $\frac{5}{8}$ " board on both sides of 2" x 4" wood studs spaced 16" on center. The board is nailed to the studs by means of 6d coated common nails 7" on center—Test reference U.L. Design #5—Approved March 23, 1953.

2. Unsymmetrical load bearing partition—Wood stud and $\frac{5}{8}$ " board attached to studs—The construction consists of 2" x 4" wood studs on 16" centers. One layer of the $\frac{5}{8}$ " board is attached to the wood studs by means of 6d nails spaced 8" on centers. On the other face of the 2" x 4" studs are placed Donn DG-8 25 Gage Resilient Furring channels spaced 24" along the height of the stud; these channels are attached to the studs by means of 6d nails 1½" thick. Fiber-glas insulation blank is then placed behind the furring channels and between the studs and stapled to the head plate. The other face of 5/8" board is then fastened to the furring channels with 1" long drywall screws spaced 6" on centers at the horizontal edge joints and 12" on center in the field of the board. The construction is in accordance with T-3127, which is on file with and part of the record. This construction successfully met the requirements of a one-hour fire resistive load bearing combustible partition when tested at Ohio State University.

B) Two-Hour

6½" thick load bearing partition—2 layers of 5/8" board on both sides of 2" x 4" wood studs spaced 16" on center. The first layer of board on each side of the stud is attached to the studs by means of 6d nails spaced 9" on center. The second layer is applied directly over the first layer of board with no adhesive or filler between the boards by means of 8d nails spaced 7" on center on perimeter. The construction is in accordance with details in T-194, which is on file with the record. The construction successfully met the requirements of a two-hour fire resistive load bearing combustible partition when tested at Ohio State University.

Incombustible Partition

I Steel Stud Partition

A) One-Hour

1. One-hour non-load bearing incombustible partition—1 layer of 5/8" board on both sides of steel studs spaced 24" on centers; the board is attached to the studs by means of 6d nails spaced 6" on centers. Where vertical joints occur, diamond shaped washers are used on the outside head of the nail, on the outside face of the board so that each edge of the board is held in contact with the stud test reference T-209—Approved by Board March 24, 1953.

B) Two-Hour

1. Two-hour non-load bearing incombustible partition—2 layers of 5/8" board on both sides of steel studs, designated as type Z-3, spaced 24" on centers. The inner layer of board is attached to each face of the stud by means of Neslo clips 12" on centers at the vertical joints. One inch long screws are used to attach the wallboard 12" on centers at the studs, 24" on centers at the top and bottom of the panel and 30" on centers along the vertical edges of the board. Contact adhesive is then applied to the face of the board and to the back face of the vinyl clad facing board, and the two boards are then laminated together. In addition to the contact adhesive, the outer layer is then further secured by means of 1½" long screws spaced 8" on centers on the top and bottom of the board and which penetrated both layers of the board into the tracks. The construction is in accordance with Dwg. T-2406, which is on file with the record. The construction successfully met the requirements of a two-hour fire resistive non-load bearing partition when tested at Ohio State University.

II Gypsum Stud Partition

A) One-Hour

1. One-hour non-load bearing incombustible partition—one layer of 5/8" board erected vertically, both sides of 1" x 6" wide gypsum ribs. The gypsum rib consists of two layers of ½" board laminated together to form a rib 1" x 6". These ribs are spaced 24" on centers and are anchored to the metal floor and ceiling runners. The 5/8" board is then attached to each side of the ribs by means of 1" long Type S Drywall Screws spaced 8" on center at ceiling, floor line and vertical edges and 24" on the intermediate studs. Test reference U.L. #10. Approved by Board June 23, 1959.

B) Two-Hour

1. Two-hour non-load bearing incombustible partition. Basically the same construction as the one-hour except that an extra layer of 5/8" board is attached by lamination and screws to the first layer of board. Test reference U.L. #10. Approved by Board June 23, 1959.

C) Three-Hour

Three-hour fire resistive non-load bearing incombustible partition. Basically the same as the two-hour, except that there are two floors and ceiling runners spaced ½" apart so that the partition is a total of 5" in thickness. The construction of the ribs and the lamination of the ribs and board is the same as for the two-hour rated partition. Test reference U.L. #10. Approved by Board June 23, 1959.

Dens-Cote System

In lieu of finishing the system with tape and joint compound, the Dens-Cote System is used. The Dens-Cote Finish is applied to a thickness of 3/32" over the base and the use of this finish does not increase the fire resistive rating of the partition. This system was approved by the Board December 17, 1963, under this Calendar Number, and may be used with all partitions herein described.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends that the resolution adopted March 24, 1953 and amended at various times through December 17, 1963, under Cal. 709-51-SM, be reopened and amended so as to include the additional fire resistive partitions as herein described under Inspection and Test, to re-assemble all partitions approved or recommended for approval under this Cal. No. for the specific classification; namely—

Combustible partitions as described under Combustible Partition A, 1 and 2 for one-hour fire resistive load bearing combustible partition, and B for a two-hour fire resistive load bearing combustible partition in Class III Construction or construction 6 stores or 75'-0" in height.

Incombustible Partitions as described under Incombustible Partitions I and II in all classes of construction for either 1, 2 or 3-hour fire resistive non-load bearing incombustible partitions when constructed as herein described for the particular fire resistive rating required.

The use of the Dens-Cote System as herein described for use with these partitions.

That the material may be marketed by the following companies under the following trade names: Johns-Manville—Firetard; Barrett Division—Firewall; Celotex Corp.—Fi-Rok, and Flintkote Corp.—Super Fire-Ex.

The Committee further recommends that all plans submitted to the Department of Buildings showing the proposed use of this material in partitions shall be labeled: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City, under Cal. 709-51-SM, and that all boards shall be similarly marked and further that all other requirements of the original resolution shall be complied with.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:
710-51-SM—Amendment to resolution as to additional fire resistant floor and ceiling construction and to re-assemble the presently approved construction.

Georgia-Pacific Corp., Bestwall Gypsum Division, Paoli, Penna., requested that the resolution adopted March 24, 1954 and amended at various times through May 5, 1964, under Cal. 710-51-SM, be reopened and amended so as to include additional fire resistive floor and ceiling construction and to re-assemble the presently approved constructions into one report.

PROPOSED USE: One and two-hour fire resistive floor and ceiling construction.

DESCRIPTION: The wallboard used as a component part of the various floor and ceiling construction is similar to the usual gypsum board, except that to the gypsum core is added incombustible fibers and unexpanded vermiculite.
The board is $\frac{5}{8}$ " in thickness.

INSPECTION AND TEST: All approvals granted under this Cal. No. are based on actual fire tests and successfully meeting the test requirements.

In order to clarify the approvals, the floor and ceiling constructions will be subdivided into combustible and incom-bustible assemblies, and further into separate hourly ratings.

Combustible Construction

I. One-hour fire resistive rating—Wood joists spaced 16"
on centers and on the upper side of the joists, rough flooring, building paper and finish flooring are installed. The $\frac{5}{8}$ " board is then applied to the ceiling side by nailing the board to the joists on 6" centers by means of 6d nails. U. L.
Design No. 1—Approved by the Board March 24, 1954.

II. Two-hour fire resistive rating—Wood joists spaced 16"
on centers and on the upper side of the joists, rough flooring, building paper and finish flooring are installed. One layer of $\frac{5}{8}$ " board is then nailed to the joists with 8d nails spaced 7" on centers. Furring channels of 25 gauge steel, spaced 24" on centers and perpendicular to the joists, are then installed by nailing these channels to the joists by means of 8d nails. The second layer of $\frac{5}{8}$ " board is then secured to these furring channels by means of 1" long wallboard screws placed 12" on center. The construction is in accordance with U. L. Design 217. The construction successfully met the requirements of a two-hour fire resistive floor and ceiling assembly (combustible).

Incombustible Construction

I.—One-Hour

A) One-hour fire resistive rating—Steel joists, 24" on center with a 2" reinforced concrete slab on metal lath on the top of the joists. On the underside of the joists, furring channels or nailing channels 16" on centers are then wire-tied to each joist. The $\frac{5}{8}$ " wallboard is then secured to the furring channels with No. 6 flathead sheet metal screws spaced 8" on center or to the nailing channels with fether ring barbed nails 6" on center. U. L. Design No. 2—Approved by the Board, June 23, 1959.

B) Two-hour fire resistive rating—Steel joists 24" on centers with a 2" concrete slab on metal lath on top of the joists.
Furring channels, spaced 24" on center are wire-tied to the lower flange of the joists.

The $\frac{5}{8}$ " board is then attached to the furring channels by means of No. 6 sheet metal screws spaced 12" on center.
The construction is in accordance with U. L. Design 259.
The construction successfully met the requirements of a two-hour fire resistive construction.

DENS-COTE SYSTEM

In lieu of finishing the system with tape and joint compound, the Dens-Cote System is used. The Dens-Cote Finish is applied to a thickness of $\frac{3}{32}$ " over the base and the use of this system does not increase the fire resistive ratings of the floor construction. This system was approved by the Board, December 17, 1963, under this Cal. No. and may be used with all floor and ceiling constructions as herein described.

One-hour fire resistive rating of the $\frac{5}{8}$ " board itself.

The $\frac{5}{8}$ " board was approved by the Board July 24, 1962, under this Cal. No., as having met the requirements of a short span fire resistive ceiling, for the use as a one-hour fire resistive ceiling when installed in an approved steel suspension system.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends that the resolution adopted March 24, 1954 and amended at various times through May 5, 1964, under Cal. 710-51-SM, be reopened and amended so as to include the additional fire resistive floor and ceiling constructions, as herein described under Inspection and Test to re-assemble all floor and ceiling constructions approved or recommended for approval under this Cal. No. for the specific classification; namely,

Combustible floor and ceiling construction as described under Combustible Construction for one and two-hour fire resistive construction as listed under I and II for use in Class III and IV construction.

Incombustible floor and ceiling construction as described under Incombustible Construction A and B, for either 1 or 2 hour fire resistive floor and ceiling construction when constructed for the particular fire resistive rating required.

The use of the $\frac{5}{8}$ " board as a one-hour short span fire resistive ceiling.

The use of Dens-Cote System as herein described for use with these floor and ceiling constructions.

That the material may be marketed by the following companies under the following trade names: Johns-Manville—Firetard; Barrett Division—Firewall; Celotex Corp.—Fi-Roc, and Flintkote Co.—Super Fire-Ex.

The Committee further recommends that all plans submitted to the Department of Buildings showing the proposed use of this material in floor and ceiling construction shall be labeled: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. 710-51-SM", and that all boards shall be similarly marked and that all other re-

DESCRIPTION: The feeder consists of a steel tank with one filler cap, a short slotted strainer, a long slotted strainer, drain cock and flow indicator.

The flow indicator consists of a pyrex glass cylinder containing a rubber ball and is fitted in two castings having $\frac{3}{4}$ inch connections at each end. The flow indicator is placed in one of the $\frac{3}{4}$ inch by-pass lines so that the flow will raise and revolve the ball.

The chemical used in conjunction with the feeder is known as Drewphos a slowly soluble complex phosphate as manufactured by the Drew Chemical Corp.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The appliance was tested at the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity Testing Station, Kent Avenue, Brooklyn. The appliance successfully met the requirements of the New York City Health Code. The complete report is on file with and is part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance known as Drew By-Pass Feeder for voluntary use in New York City under the provisions of C26-178.0 Administrative Building Code, Submerged Inlet Rules of the Board and the New York City Health Code, on condition that the chemical used with this device be Drewphos, a slowly soluble complex phosphate, as manufactured by Drew Chemical Corp. Each appliance shall bear a label, permanently affixed, reading, "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. 141-65-SA."

As the service depends on a number of variables such as size of pipes, size of building to be serviced, water pressure, rate and volume of flow, the Committee further recommends that the service to be of such a size to take care of these conditions under the provisions of the Sanitary Code and further that the design for each installation shall be submitted in accordance with the requirements of C26-164.0 Administrative Building Code.

PROPOSED USE: Device for feeding chemicals to potable water.

DESCRIPTION: The device consists of a steel tank, supported on legs with inlet, outlet, fill and drain connections.

Water passing through the domestic water main has a small quantity diverted to the tank by means of a properly sized orifice assembly or valve inserted in the main. A control valve is located in the inlet pipe line to the tank to further regulate the flow of water to the chemical bed.

Water entering the feed tank sweeps across the chemical bed, picking up a quantity of chemical and enters the outlet piping, and returning to the main, mixes with the main stream flow.

Shutoff valves are located in the inlet and outlet lines to isolate the tank, if necessary.

The chemical used in conjunction with the feeder is silicate.

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:
846-65-SM—Penn-Dixie Cement Corp., Plant #4, Nazareth, Penna., filed for approval of the material known as Penn-Dixie Chem Comp Expansive Cement under the provisions of C26-312.o.c.2, Administrative Building Code.

PROPOSED USE: Cement to control shrinkage in concrete.

DESCRIPTION: Chem Comp cement is essentially a blend of regular Portland cement clinker and an expansive component that have been interground together in proper proportions so as to produce a cement that is shrinkage compensating in nature. The expansive component clinker that is interground is basically composed of three materials, bauxite, gypsum and limestone. The first step in the manufacture of Chem Comp cement is a chemical analysis of the three raw materials mentioned above. From this analysis, the correct proportions of these three materials that will give the maximum amount of expansive component is determined. The three materials, in their correct proportions, are ground in a ball mill with water until all particles pass a 50 mesh sieve and are then placed in tanks. Each tank is again analyzed. The material is taken from the tanks and fed to a kiln and burned into a clinker similar to Portland cement at a temperature of 2400°F. The clinker is analyzed to determine the chemical composition of the clinker and is then stored in covered storage.

Tests are then conducted with various percentages of the expansive clinker and Portland cement clinker to be used in the manufacture of the finished product. These tests are made to determine what percentages of expansive clinker to produce an unrestrained expansion between 0.15 and 0.20% in a 5.5 bag mix.

After this percentage has been determined, the Chem Comp Cement is made by proportioning the correct amount of expansive clinker and regular Type I, Portland cement clinker. Gypsum is also added to insure proper setting time. These materials are then ground together in a ball mill until 90% of the particles pass a 325 mesh sieve. The cement is then tested to see that it conforms to Type I cement, except for the amount of SO₃ which is greater than that allowed for Type I Portland Cement.

INSPECTION AND TEST: A series of tests, as set forth by the Supervisory Committee, as there is no ASTM specification for this type of cement, were conducted by Gulick-Henderson Laboratories, Inc. The tests were comparative tests, comparing Type I and Chem Comp. The tests consisted of compression, Flexure, Bond, Freeze-Thaw, and Chemical analysis.

The chemical composition of the cements is as follows:

Chemical Analysis	Type I	Chem Comp
Silicon Dioxide (SiO ₂)	20.5%	17.2%
Aluminum Oxide (Al ₂ O ₃)	6.4%	8.6%
Ferric Oxide (Fe ₂ O ₃)	2.3%	2.0%
Magnesium Oxide (Mg O)	3.2%	2.8%
Sulphur Trioxide (SO ₃)	2.7%	5.7%
Loss on Ignition	1.3%	1.7%
Insoluble residue	0.38%	0.37%
Calcium Silicate (C ₃ S)	44.0%	41.0%
Dicalcium Silicate (C ₂ S)	26.0%	19.0%
Tricalcium Aluminate (C ₃ A)	13.0%	19.0%
Tetracalcium Alumino Ferrite (C ₄ AF)	7.0%	6.0%
Calcium Oxide (Ca O)	62.3%	61.0%

The summary of the report states as follows:

"The chemical analyses of the two cements shows an increase in the calcium content and a decrease in the silica. With equal fineness an increase in early strength was expected. The results actually found were indicative of a high early strength cement, and all tests made indicate conclusively that the behavior of Chem Comp Cement in concrete is comparable to Type I Cement, except that it develops higher early strengths, will have equal durability with the use of air entrainment recommended".

The applicant has also submitted a proposed specification which basically follows the specification for Type I, except that the requested maximum amount of Sulphur Trioxide (SO₃) would be 12%, instead of the maximum allowable of 3% and the 5.7% as shown in the chemical analysis of the cement tested.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the material known as Penn-Dixie Chem Comp Expansive Cement for use in New York City under the provisions of C26-312.o.c.2, Administrative Building Code under the following conditions: that this cement shall be used as in a similar manner to Type I cement in controlled concrete as set forth under Article 19, Chapter 26, Administrative Building Code; that all curing shall be done in accordance with the manufacturer's specification; that the chemical analysis of the cement shall be as herein described, as tested; that, as this is a new type of cement, monthly mill reports showing the chemical and physical requirements, signed by the chief chemist, shall be filed with this Board.

All bags or barrels in which this material is marketed shall be labeled: "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. 846-65-SM", and when sold in bulk, the bills of lading or shipping ticket shall be similarly marked. The Committee further recommends that when this cement is used in concrete, no additives or air entraining agents shall be used in the design mix.

985-65-SA—M. Kweller for American Laundry Machinery Industries, Cincinnati, Ohio, applied for approval of the appliance known as Aceco Dry Cleaning Machine, Class 2206, Models 1, 2 and 3, which will also be marketed as their Martin Dry Cleaning Machine, Class 2206, Models 1, 2 and 3, under the provisions of the Rules Covering Non-Coin Operated Dry Cleaning Establishments.

MINUTES

PROPOSED USE: Dry cleaning machinery using perchlorethylene solvent.

DESCRIPTION: The Aceco Model 1 dry cleaning machine is designed to automatically clean, extract and dry a 15 lbs. load of clothes in approximately 30 minutes.

The component parts of the machine are basically the washer-extractor-dryer basket with its loading door and safety lock, a button trap, lint trap, filter and muck still. A 141 gallon capacity solvent tank serves as a base for the assembled unit.

During the drying cycle any solvent retained in the clothing is reclaimed by first vaporizing it with heated air supplied from a fin type steam coil and then condensing the vapors by means of a water cooled condenser. Steam is supplied from a remote source at 60 psi. A water chiller of 2 tons refrigerating capacity using R-22 refrigerant is available as optional equipment to supply colder water for condensing purposes. It is installed remotely from the machine.

The filter, containing a filtering powder, is used to clarify the solvent and return it to the tank. When the filter powder requires replacing, usually at the end of the day, it is released into the muck still beneath and dry steam from a remote source at 60 to 80 psi. is supplied through a reducing valve to distill the remaining solvent in the spent filter powder. This spent powder is removed from the still when dry. If boiler pressure exceeds 100 psi. then a separate control valve set at 80 psi. and a relief valve set at 100 psi. are installed in the steam line before the reducing valve.

The vapors from the still are condensed by a water-cooled condenser coil and enter a separator where water and perchlorethylene are separated. The solvent is returned to the tank and the water collected and discarded.

An exhaust duct is provided to vent the cleaning machine.

The Model 2 machine has a washer-extractor-dryer basket the same as the Model 1, but in addition a drying tumbler is installed in an adjacent compartment. The tumbler is steam heated and reclaims solvent in the same manner as the washer-extractor-dryer unit. The use of the tumbler permits increased output for the machine.

The operator transfers the clothes from the basket to the tumbler after the extraction cycle. The basket is then re-loaded and the cleaning-extracting cycles repeated while the tumbler completes drying the clothes. In this manner the output of cleaned and dried garments is doubled. A switch is located on the front panel of the machine to permit this alternate method of operation.

In the Model 2, the filter and still are set on the floor to the rear of the storage tank.

The Model 3 machine is a dual Model 1 machine with two washer-extractor-dryer baskets mounted on the base tank. It has two filters and one still set on the floor to the rear of the tank.

The Martin dry cleaning machines are the same design as the Aceco models except for color and insignia.

INSPECTION AND TEST: An Aceco Model 1 unit was inspected at 1793 New York Avenue, Huntington Station, Long Island, by Ass't. Engr. G. F. Sklenarik. This unit was equipped with the optional water chiller.

The basket size is 30" x 15" with a calculated capacity of 17 lbs. based on 2.8 lbs. per cubic foot.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance known as Aceco Dry Cleaning Machine, Class 2206, Models 1, 2 and 3, rated at 17 lbs. for each washer basket also marketed as the Martin Dry Cleaning Machine, Class 2206, Models 1, 2 and 3, for use in New York City with perchlorethylene solvent when installed in accordance with this report and the Board's Rules Covering Non-Coin Operated Dry Cleaning Establishments and the Electrical Code of the City of New York. 1276-65-SM—Concrete Plank Co., North Arlington, New Jersey, filed for approval of the material known as Concrete Plank—2-Hour Rating under the provisions of C26-588.0 through C26-590.0, Administrative Building Code.

PROPOSED USE: Component part of a two-hour fire resistive roof construction.

DESCRIPTION: The plank, 2" in thickness, has been approved by the Board under Cal. 28-38-SM, and is used as a component part of a roof and ceiling construction.

The roof construction consists of the concrete planks supported on steel joists, insulated with 1 inch thick mineral and fiber board and topped with 3-ply built-up roofing. The roof deck is protected by a suspended ceiling of 12" x 12" x 3/4" acoustical tile ceiling which contains three recessed light fixtures and one air duct per 180 sq. ft.

In erection, the steel joists are first installed and are bridged by means of 1/2" diameter steel bars welded to the top and bottom chords of the joists. The concrete planks are laid on the bar joists to provide a two span condition. The planks are attached to the joists with two clips per joist. These clips are formed of 0.037" galvanized steel and are formed to fit around the tongue of the plank at one end and notched to fit over the top chord of the joist at the other end. At the same time, hanger tabs, to provide support for the ceiling, are attached to the plank with 5d coated nails and the protruding legs of the tabs are bent so as to flush with the top surface of the plank.

The vapor barrier, 0.004 vinyl material is then applied to the roof by means of an adhesive. On top of the vapor barrier, Armstrong Cork Company "Minalok" 1 inch thick is then applied. Three ply built-up roofing is applied over the roof insulation.

On the ceiling side of the assembly, cold rolled steel channels are installed to provide support for the light fixtures, air duct and the zee runners. The channels are attached to joists or hanger tabs by means of straps as required under C26-461.0, Administrative Building Code. The zee runners are then installed and the tiles are then installed by placing the tile over the bottom flange of the zee runners.

Air ducts and lighting fixtures are installed in the ceiling.

The construction complies with Dwg. R 4247-2, which is on file with and is part of the record.

INSPECTION AND TEST: A roof construction as herein described was tested at the Underwriters' Laboratories in accordance with the requirements of C26-588.0 through C26-590.0, Administrative Building Code and successfully met the requirements of a two-hour fire resistive roof construction. The complete report R 4247-2 is on file with and is part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the material known as Concrete Plank 2-Hour Rating for use in New York City as a two hour fire resistive roof construction when constructed as herein described and in accordance with Dwg. COURT DECISION.

Matter of Albanese vs. Board:—On June 29, 1965, the Board extended the term of variance for a term of years on condition that there shall be no manufacturing on this property; Calendar Number 181-61-BZ; Premises 1338 65th Street, south side, 300 feet west of 13th Avenue, Block 5754, Lot 22, Borough of Brooklyn.

At Supreme Court, Special Term, Part I, Mr. Justice Pino affirmed the determination of the Board, as follows:

"Respondents, who constitute the membership of the Board of Standards and Appeals of the City of New York, move herein for a final order and judgment vacating the order of certiorari obtained herein by petitioner; to dismiss the petition herein; and to affirm the determination of the Board. . . .

From a reading of these provisions it is apparent that the right to grant an extension or renewal of a variance is not affected by the length of time elapsed between the expiration date of the variance and the date of the application for renewal. As previously noted herein, the board found that the same conditions existed in the area of the subject premises at the time of the application for renewal as existed at the time of the granting of the original variance. This finding would appear to be the determining factor, and upon such finding the board is justified in exercising its discretionary power to extend the term of the variance (Matter of Borea Contracting Co., Inc., v. Murdock, 250 App. Div. 262).
Accordingly, the motion is in all respects granted. Settle order on notice."

Cal. No. 1124-64-SA—Midwest Machinery Co., Oklahoma City, Oklahoma filed for approval of the appliance known as Midwest Washer-Extractor for Dry Cleaning, 30 lb. and 20 lb., under the provisions of the Board's Rules Covering Non-Coin Operated Dry Cleaning Establishments.

PROPOSED USE: A non-coin operated dry cleaning machine using perchlorethylene solvent.

DESCRIPTION: The Midwest-Washer-Extractor units are made in two sizes rated by the manufacturer as 30 and 20 pounds capacity. The outer loading door at the washer basket must be closed tightly in order to start the machine. An electrical interlock is provided on the machine for that purpose. A 200 gallon steel solvent tank is used as a base for the machine. Other components include a tubular filter, lint and button trap and a muck still.

The still, which is used at the end of the day to reclaim solvent retained in the filter powder, is heated by steam supplied from a remote source at a maximum pressure of 80 psi.

The solvent is condensed by means of a water coil and is run off to a water separator. The water condensate is discarded and the solvent is returned to the tank.

The cleaning and extracting cycles are automatically controlled by compressed air operated valves and an electric timer. Air is supplied at a maximum pressure of 50 psi from an ASME code designed air compressor.

When the extraction cycle is completed, the clothes are then removed from the machine and dried in a separate steam heated dryer of approved type.

INSPECTION AND TEST: A typical unit was inspected by Ass't Engr. G. F. Sklenarik at 141-10 Rockaway Blvd., Queens. The proprietor stated that the equipment has been operating satisfactorily.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the appliance known as Midwest Washer-Extractor for Dry Cleaning, 30 lb. and 20 lb., for use in New York City with perchlorethylene solvent when installed in accordance with the Board's Rules Covering Non-Coin Operated Dry Cleaning Establishments and the Electrical Code of the City of New York. 326-65-SM—Johns-Manville Sales Corp., New York filed for approval of the material known as 2½" Thermostone Transitop Exterior Panel under the provisions of C26-446.0 Administrative Building Code.

PROPOSED USE: Two hour fire resistive curtain wall.

DESCRIPTION: The material was approved under Cal. No. 1774-61-SM for the same corporation as a two hour fire resistive partition. The exterior curtain wall is manufactured of the same materials as approved under Cal. No. 1774-61-SM.

The material is a sandwich panel consisting of a core of Thermostone faced on both faces with J. M. Asbestos Flexboard.

Thermostone is composed of blended fibers and inorganic binders, and Flexboard is made of asbestos fibers and portland cement.

The panel is manufactured in thicknesses of 2½" and the weights, 8.1 lbs. per sq. ft.

The construction was as follows:

326-65-SM—The panels are attached to 2½" x 2½" x ½" steel angles, located at the floor and ceiling heights and at the end walls by means of No. 14 by 4 inch long hex-head self-tapping screws with combination washer and seal extending through the panel and into the angles. These screws are spaced 12 inches on center. A center girt of 2½" x 2½" x ½" angle is applied in a horizontal position, midway of the height of the partition.

The panels have a 1⅜" deep by ⅛" wide cut along the long edge of the panel to form grooves for the insertion of metal splines, 2½" wide of 18 gauge zinc coated steel.

The panels are set in place and a caulking compound is inserted in the groove and then the metal spline is inserted in the groove.

Caulking compound is then applied along the vertical edge of the second panel and it is butted tight against the first panel.

Asbestos cement battens, ¼" thick by 4" wide are placed on both sides of the assembly over the joints, formed by adjacent panels. These battens are attached to the panels with No. 8 by ¾" long self tapping screws spaced 12" on centers vertically. The panels are also attached to the center girt with ¼" by 7" long flat head bolts, with combination washer and seal, extending through the units and bolted to ⅝" thick by 1" wide "U" shaped clips hooked to the angle girt.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The panel was tested at the Underwriters' Laboratories and successfully met the requirements of a two hour resistive non bearing partition. The complete report R4662.1 is on file and part of the record under Cal. No. 1774-61-SM.

The applicant has also submitted summary of test conducted on the material showing that on a span of 12'-0" the ultimate load was 60 P. S. F. and that with a factor of safety of 3, the deflection was 0.80" for a 20 P. S. F. load on a 12'-0" high section.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends the approval of the material known as 2½" Thermostone Transitop Exterior Panel for use in New York City as a 2 hour exterior curtain wall under the provisions of C26-446.0 Administrative Building Code, on condition that all plans submitted to the Department of Buildings showing the proposed use of this construction shall be labeled, "Approved by the Board of Standards and Appeals for use in New York City under Cal. No. 326-65-SM". The Committee further recommends that the use of the panel be limited as a non bearing wall in buildings not exceeding two stories in height and also for use in bulkheads and penthouse enclosures as permitted under C26-671.0 and C26-672.0 Administrative Building Code.

*CORRECTION

That portion of the minutes of the meeting of the Board of Standards and Appeals held on July 13, 1965 as they appeared in Bulletin No. 29, Vol. 50, are hereby corrected to read as follows:

900-50-SM—Vols. I & II

APPLICANT—Asbestospray Corporation, owner.

APPEARANCES—

For Applicant: Wm. G. Boyle.

ACTION OF BOARD—Application reopened and resolution amended in accordance with the report and recommendation of the Committee on Tests.

THE VOTE—

Affirmative: Chairman Foley, Commissioner Fox,
Commissioner Becker and Commissioner Klein 4
Negative: 0
Absent: Vice Chairman Kleinert 1

THE RESOLUTION—

WHEREAS, the report of a Committee on Test reads:
900-50-SM—Vols. I & II—Amendment to resolution as to additional fire resistive floor construction.

Asbestospray Corp. Newark, New Jersey, requested that the resolution adopted July 24, 1951 and amended through November 20, 1962, under Cal. 900-50-SM—Vols. I & II, be reopened and amended so as to include additional fire resistive floor and/or roof construction.

PROPOSED USE: Three-hour fire resistive floor construction.

DESCRIPTION: The material, a sprayed asbestos fireproofing, is the same as that approved July 24, 1951, under Cal. 900-50-SM—Vol. I.

INSPECTION AND TEST: The material was tested at the Underwriters' Laboratories as a component part of a fire resistive floor construction. The tests were conducted in accordance with the requirements of C26-588.0 through C26-590.0 and C26-609.0, Administrative Building Code.

The construction was as follows:

Type A—This type consisted of a floor and ceiling assembly composed of a concrete floor and electrical header duct supported by a blend of cellular and fluted steel floor units and a steel beam, protected by the sprayed asbestos, known as Asbestospray.

The fluted floor units are 12" wide by 3-1/16" deep, fabricated from a single sheet of 14 gauge steel. The cellular units are 24" wide by 3 1/8" deep, fabricated of a bottom plate of 16 gauge steel to which is spot welded a fluted section of 18 gauge steel.

The header ducts are fabricated of 10 gauge steel 6 1/2" wide by 1 1/2" deep.

The floor units are first installed, resting on and welded to the supporting beam. The header ducts are then installed resting on and at right angles to the floor units. Concrete, reinforced with 6 x 6 No. 10 gauge wire mesh, is then poured to a depth of 2 1/2" over the top plane of the floor units. Concrete must be vibrated to fill the valleys in the floor units under the header ducts.

The underside of the deck and the steel beam is then sprayed with an adhesive known as Asbestospray Adhesive Type L-30 and water. The material, Asbestospray, is then applied to the prepared deck and beam.

The tamped thickness of the applied Asbestospray is as follows:

Flat plates of cellular units—13/16". Valleys and crests of fluted units — 7/8". Under the header ducts, Flat Plates of the cellular units. Under the header ducts — crests and valleys of the fluted units — all 1 1/8" Beam. Bottom of lower flange and all other exposed surfaces — 1".

The construction is in accordance with Dwg. 1-R3372-10, which is on file with and is part of the record.

The floor successfully met the requirements of a three-hour fire resistive floor construction and the beam successfully met the requirements of a four-hour fire resistive beam protection. The complete report U.L. R3372-10 is on file with and is part of the record.

Type B — This is basically the same type of construction as Type A. The difference is in the shape of the floor units and the applied thickness of fireproofing.

The floor units consist of cellular and fluted sections. The cellular units are fabricated of 18 gauge top section, spot welded to 16 gauge steel bottom section. The units are 3 cell units, total width of 18". The fluted sections are fabricated of 20 gauge steel and are also a total of 18" wide. Both cellular and fluted units are 1 1/2" high.

The header duct is fabricated of 10 gauge steel . . . 1-9/16" deep by 6 1/2" wide.

The floor units are first installed, resting on and welded to the supporting beam. The header ducts are then installed resting on and at right angles to the floor units. Concrete, reinforced with 6 x 6 No. 10 gauge wire, is then poured to a depth of 2 1/2" over the top plane of the floor units.

The underside of the deck and the steel beam is then sprayed with an adhesive known as Asbestospray Adhesive, Type L-30 and water. The material, Asbestospray, is then applied to the prepared deck and beam.

The tamped thickness of the applied Asbestospray is as follows:

Beam bottom of lower flange and all exposed surfaces — 3/4". Form units — 5/8", and Form units under the header ducts — 1".

The construction is in accordance with Dwg S-235, contained in U.L. R3372-9, which is on file with and is part of the record.

The construction successfully met the requirements of a three-hour fire resistive floor construction and three-hour beam protection. The complete report U.L. R3372-9 is on file with and is part of the record.

RECOMMENDATION: The Committee on Test recommends that the resolution adopted July 24, 1951 and amended through November 20, 1962, under Cal. 900-50-SM—Vols. I & II, be reopened and amended so as to include the additional fire resistive floor construction and beam protection as herein described as a three-hour fire resistive floor construction and four-hour beam protection as described under Type A, and as a three-hour fire resistive floor construction and four-hour beam protection as described under Type B, on condition that all other requirements of the resolution adopted July 24, 1951 and amended through Nov. 20, 1962, under Cal. 900-50-SM—Vols. I & II, be complied with.

(Sgd.) WILLIAM A. NOLAN,
Director,

JOHN A. DARTS,
Asst. Engr.,

GEORGE F. SKLENARIK,
Asst. Engr.,
Committee on Test.

Resolved that the Board of Standards and Appeals does hereby amend the above cited resolution in accordance with the above report.

* Correction—In the Recommendation section above (line 9) three hour beam protection under Type B is corrected to read four hour beam protection.
